Sep 8, 2018 >> i would say until 12-13. i would try to be specific, although most of my teachers would say 8-9. heh yeah, i'd be fine with 8-9 myself. i was thinking when he said 8-9. i was thinking in terms of height, not age. i guess since it's so close i should ask him. i think the answer is i need to take off my shirt. so that i am, you know, not butt. but i could be wrong. and if i am wrong, then i'm pretty sure i can safely say that it is 8-9. that's not all you need to do to ask. but i'll try to think of a few more things. how is the dress? I think you need to wait until you're in the red dress (unless the question only asks about the dress in general) since it will seem more obviously that you're trying to ask about the situation you're in now. I would go for a tryout, because the red dress thing is more important than the hat. First off, you need to feel confident in the red dress because if you don't, you will be convinced it's too short. Make sure you don't think about it, and go in there ready to be confident in a short dress. In terms of the hat, don't worry about it. Unless they tell you something about it, it's just a hat. If they are letting you know it's a hat, then just say that. Also, don't ask about the hat. You can just say "If I wear this, will you let me play on my team?" or something like that.

Q: SQL Server: How to insert multiple rows into different tables at once? I need to have a stored procedure that will insert multiple rows into different tables at once. So far i have this: CREATE PROCEDURE [dbo].[sInsert] AS BEGIN -- multiple rows INSERT INTO Table1 (c1, c2) VALUES (1, 2d92ce491b
