It is approximately long and flows through Bethlehem Township and Whitehall Township. The watershed of the creek has an area of. The main rock formations in the watershed of Millers Creek are the Saucon Mountain Formation and the Lower Silurian Schlosserock Formation. The creek is named after Joseph Millers, a businessman and volunteer firefighter in the area. A number of bridges have been constructed over Millers Creek and its tributaries. Course Millers Creek begins in a large, narrow valley in Bethlehem Township. It flows east-northeast for several tenths of a mile before turning north-northeast. After a short distance, the creek turns northeast again, entering Whitehall Township and receiving the tributary Sugar Run. It then meanders for a few tenths of a mile before turning north-northeast. It eventually turns north-northwest for more than a mile before turning west-northwest. After several tenths of a mile, it begins to receive the tributary Millers Branch. It then turns west-northwest for several tenths of a mile and then turns north-northwest. Several hundred feet further upstream, the creek reaches its
