Leslie was the son of Henry Leslie, rector of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, London, who died in 1601, and was educated at Merchant Taylors' School, where he matriculated in 1582. In 1590, his father was elected mayor of London, and a few years after his death the young Leslie was made head-chorister of the church of St. Bartholomew-the-Less. After taking his degrees of M.A. at Cambridge University in 1597, Leslie became physician to the fleet of James I, and was, in 1605, appointed physician to the Queen, in the absence of Richard Finglas, to whose death in 1605 he was appointed physician in his place. A few years after the accession of James I, he became a nonconformist, and in 1616 he was appointed pastor at St. Olave's, Hart Street, London. He was ejected in 1619, and for nine years he exercised his ministry as itinerant preacher. Leslie's name occurs in the account of the imprisonment of Mary, Queen of Scots in the tower of York Castle; and in 1631 he was elected fellow of the Royal College of Physicians. Works On 7 July 1624 Leslie was appointed librarian to the Royal Society of Antiquaries, and in 1631 he was elected a fellow of the Society. His chief literary work, however, was his A Compleat History of the City of London (1630). This was followed by The Five Worthies (1632), and by a treatise on the various sorts of waters, especially the sacred. Leslie's book The Dramatic Piece (printed 1631, and written about 1624) is now in the British Library. Notes
