Daz Loader By Daz V1.9.2 Windows 7. 7.Q: C++ getters for each object in the list is not possible? I have a list of objects. This list can vary (the number of elements can change). I need to perform different calculations for each element in the list. Normally I would do that like this: class Example { private: string name; double weight; double volume; public: Example(string name, double weight, double volume) : name(name), weight(weight), volume(volume) {} void Calculate(); }; void Example::Calculate() { // Do calculations here } Now I have a list of Example objects and I want to do the Calculate() method for each object in the list. I could of course "manually" call the Calculate() method for each element in the list. std::list exampleList = {Example("firstExample",20
