What is this new technology? HyperMotion Technology builds on the new Frostbite Dynamic Fields engine, which was first unveiled at E3 2013. It is a brand-new engine that allows a significant amount of detail and movement on the field of play. This allows for many new mechanics and visuals, including clearer player marker and ball movement, and a new physics system that allows players' momentum to affect gameplay. FIFA's football physics is unique in the industry, and has been widely praised by players, journalists and the community at large. For example, after years of doing work on the FIFA Football series, the people at EA Sports have recognized the benefits of Football physics and decided to move it to the next evolution – the Frostbite Dynamic Fields engine. Another new feature is the Frostbite Input Director. It was created to make sure your player moves in the way you expect them to move in real life. What kind of data was needed to get this technology working? FIFA's brand-new Frostbite Dynamic Fields engine uses motion capture to collect player motions, player activity, and tackling, as well as ball physics. But the data needed to power the game of football was something FIFA was never able to collect. Real-life football matches are violent, intense, fast-paced and constantly evolve. Players have millions of natural movements in every match – tackles, runs, ball handling, controlling the ball. We needed the most accurate, high-quality data possible to allow the engine to make playable football a reality. In order to do this, we needed a high-tech motion capture suit. While on the field, a player's movements are collected with high-speed cameras, determining their position and velocity in the game, and using that data, allows the Frostbite engine to make moves and passes look better. What will players be able to do with this new technology? Using this new technology, we're able to make player movement feel natural and realistic in a way it hasn't been in FIFA before. For example, in FIFA 20, the player's players will follow the natural movements they make in real life – running with the ball, heading it, shooting and so on. In the past, players would start running or heading the ball where the player is. We've now improved the physics so the player is able to naturally and naturally

- Universal Design
 - The camera has a new positioning system. This means that FIFA has an unobstructed view of the pitch. This applies to both the 3D and 2D game modes.
- Replication
 - Now the goalie can use his hands. It allows him to control the ball with more accuracy than ever before. On the ground, the goalie is defenseless. He can receive the ball directly from the attacker or drop it down to the midfield.
 - Assist Offs - Has been introduced to Season mode competitions and is available for Ultimate Team Draft/Buy.
 - Club Setup - Is now simply called "The Entire Club Setup", and is available for both Ultimate Team Draft/Buy and My Club. It aims to make kit customization easier and reduce the number of screen options for users, while still offering fine-tuning and fine-grained access to those options.

EA SPORTS Football Club puts the power of player management, progression, customization and match competition right in fans' hands. FIFA introduces brand new All-Stars. A new fan favorite comes to life in EA SPORTS FIFA 22, including Kaka, Cristiano Ronaldo, Messi, Neymar and more. With a new level of player interaction, cross-language support, and enhanced match intelligence with more player and team awareness, the player relationship engine has been improved to provide more authenticity for matchmaking, diplomacy, player interaction and trust. FIFA brings revolutionary gameplay innovations to life such as new Smart Pause, Edge of a Revolution, Victory Ball and Cardboard Camera Modes, and the re-introduction of Superstar Passes. Players can now perform Face Off Challenges, take on rival in Take On challenges, unlock rewards with FIFA Ultimate Team and challenge real players for exclusive trial matches. Smart Pause Smart Pause adds an extra level of player and team awareness. The more a player is involved in play, the greater the ability to predict where they will move and in what space. Smart Pause takes advantage of this to support gameplay by freezing the ball when a player is about to move, so the game is able to predict where and how the ball will move next and accordingly disable the player. As more players are on the field, the intelligence in Smart Pause has increased, providing smoother, more responsive controls. Edge of a Revolution The new Edge of a Revolution feature lets players perform a card trick by pressing the ZL button, which takes your players out of an invisible hexagon around the ball, and into the space around the opponent. When your opponent makes a tackle or win a ball through a challenge, they are now able to chase the player in a new direction. Victory Ball The Victory Ball allows players to score a crucial goal in a match with a set of celebrations that reflect the emotion and atmosphere of that moment. Players can make an impact on the match as they become bigger stars with entertaining celebrations such as diving, lying and sliding. Cardboard Camera Mode In FIFA
