We built a new engine from the ground up to take advantage of the power of the PlayStation 4 and graphics technology, increasing realism and dynamic 3D character models. The detailed facial expressions that players now exhibit should bring games to life like never before. FIFA 22 also offers unprecedented customization, allowing players to edit their player models, including crests, boots, tattoos, hair styles, and even clothing. Players can also directly edit the in-game models of their player characters, and new player customization options have been included to allow players to change the appearance of their player models. The result is an incredibly detailed football pitch where every player stands out, and every unique aspect of the game is fully visible to players – from player animations, ball physics, ball control, and pitch visuals, to details such as player crests and team badges. FIFA 22 marks the first time that the official UEFA Champions League and Europa League trophies have been available to play for in-game fans, allowing the most dedicated fans to see what the real silverware is like. FIFA 22 also brings many new gameplay innovations, with brand new melee animations, a new "throw" system, new animations and new Sudden Death scenarios. Watch out for the former Barcelona FC and Tottenham Hotspur striker, Roberto Soldado, as he delivers winning headers in memorable "flash assists." In addition, EA Sports has announced that the FIFA 22 Demo is now available on PlayStation 4, Xbox One, and PC. This demo has been created specifically for the PlayStation Network's "PlayStation Now" subscription service. It includes three minutes of FIFA gameplay and a tutorial, but will be updated regularly with exclusive content. Check out www.playstation.com/psnow for more information. FIFA 22 will be released on September 27 in North America and September 30 in Europe. Signal processing circuits are often used to transfer data between components of an electronic device.
